

Lifetime Achievement Award

Women in Fire Safety Awards

Recognising women in all areas of the Fire Safety Industry whose examples serve to inspire our next generation and deserve recognition for their daily excellence.

The Lifetime Achievement Award will be awarded to an individual, whose achievements and abilities have been recognised as above and beyond expectations. They will have demonstrated exceptional best practice, skills and qualities that will have made an impact on people, organisations, and the industry within the United Kingdom.

To be nominated for this award the individual must have been within the fire industry for over 15 years with evidence provided within the nomination. The nomination for this Award should also outline what the nominee has accomplished, outline their professional competence, and describe the impact of their achievements through concrete examples.

The candidate can submit up to two (2) supporting materials in the form of documents or videos. This can include third party references or press releases if you feel they will support the application.

Please note that any supporting evidence must have taken place since 1 January 2021.

This award can be self-nominated.
